THE ALLAN CUP PLAYOFFS

Venue and dates for all games in the Allan cup finals have been announced. The Regina Rangers, western champions, will meet the Sydney Millionaires, eastern titlists, in Calgary Saturday night. The second game will be played in Regina on Monday and the third in Saskatoon on Wednesday. The fourth, if necessary, is scheduled for Regina on April 28th.

Easter services in all the district churches were largely attended. At the evening service at Central United, two anthems by the junior girls' choir and vocal solos by Miss Rae and Mrs. A. McKay were well rendered. St. Anne's church, both on Good Friday and Easter Sunday, was crowded to overflowing for all services. A large audience also attended St. Luke's church, where services were in charge of Rev. J. R. Hague.

MAY DAY CELEBRATION TO BE HELD AT COLEMAN

Labor in this district will again celebrate on May 1st, this time at Coleman. Large posters giving particulars were turned out by The Enterprise presses the early part of the week.

There will be a grand parade of miners at 1 p.m., mustered from the district Fernie to Bellevue, followed by a mass meeting, at which speakers will include Tom Uphill, member for Fernie, and officials of District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America. Children's sports and a baseball game between Michel and Coleman will be outdoor features. At 9 p.m., a grand dance will be held in the Coleman Opera House, with music by the Arcadians.

Free refreshments will be served to children of school age and under.

THE BLAIRMORE-FRANK AMBULANCE SERVES A COLEMAN SOLDIER

To one Coleman soldier serving overseas came the unique experience of riding in an ambulance donated by the citizens of Blairmore and Frank to the Canadian Red Cross last year.

The soldier, Robert Jenkins, was being taken to his barracks after recovery at a hospital from a sickness. His eyes came to rest on a tag inside the machine on which were inscribed the words, "Donated by the Citizens of Blairmore and Frank, Alberta, Canada."

On informing his attendants that he came from Coleman, a town only four miles from Blairmore, he was told that a Coleman ambulance was also on the same route, but its crew was on the opposite shift to the Blairmore-Frank machine.

To Pass citizens it is gratifying to know that their ambulances are still "on active service" in Britain, and an added thrill is received when it is known a Pass ambulance was responsible for some small measure of comfort to a Pass soldier.—Ex.

The body of an unidentified man of about middle age was taken from the river near Painsburg on Wednesday afternoon, later identified as Bill Ferby, of no fixed abode.

The regular meeting of Blairmore Lodge of Elks on Tuesday night next will convene promptly at 7 o'clock, to be followed by a social evening for the ladies, probably at 8 o'clock. There will be cards, refreshments, games and dancing.

Immediately the Nazi blitz ceased in London, on Thursday morning of this week, Red Cross supplies from Canada were ready for the thousands homeless and crippled. In the early hours officials called on the Canadian Red Cross for immediate assistance, and fifteen hundred blankets were loaded onto lorries and speeded into the disaster areas. The food included soups, stews, hash, cheese and jam. All boroughs affected by the raid received Canadian assistance.

MAILS LOST THROUGH ENEMY ACTION

Canadian citizens expecting mail from soldiers or friends in England, mailed during the period 18th to 22nd March last, are advised that there may be considerable delay or perhaps loss, according to a statement released by Postmaster General William P. Melock.

Word has just been received that a steamer carrying mail is overdue. The ship was supposed to have left the other side during the last week of March, and was due in Canada around the first week of April. The steamer was carrying 4,261 bags of mail, including 3,855 bags of letters and 403 bags of parcels.

The Canadian post office department is at all times anxious to provide a safe and expeditious mail service between citizens of Canada and military forces and friends in Great Britain, but the above is an example of one of the unavoidable situations which from time to time confront the postal service.

Dr. P. H. Macdonald and his son Paddy, of Edmonton, were Easter visitors with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Farmer.

Pope Pius XII. besought the belligerent nations in an Easter Sunday message to refrain from using "still more homicidal instruments of warfare" and urged all Catholics to redouble their prayer for an early universal just peace; also that the powers occupying territories during the war deal justly, humanely and providently with the peoples under their domination.

By a vote of 649 to 13, Coleman miners on Saturday last accepted the proposed agreement negotiated during the previous two days between the operators of the International and McGillivray mines and officials of District 18 of the U. M. W. of Canada. The agreement, after a ten-day tie-up, was accepted, which is similar in principle to other agreements in force in the district, allows for a "closed shop," with those now in the union being given ninety days in which to join up.

Salvaging To Serve

Canada's latest war effort is one in which practically every person in the country can make some contribution, no matter how poor he or she may be. Every head of a household, every housewife and even most of the youth of the Dominion can assist this effort in some form or another and thus play a part in helping to win the war and bring it to a successful conclusion at an earlier date.

Reference is made to the campaign recently launched by a national and organized scale to collect throughout the length and breadth of the land waste material, which would otherwise be allowed to rust or rot, to gather it together and deliver it at centralized collection depots where it can be shipped to factories and workshops for processing and conversion into weapons, munitions and materials to be used in the great task of ridding the world of Nazism and of restoring freedom to the enslaved.

This is a magnificent effort in the battle for freedom in which practically every rural and urban resident of the country can freely participate and at very little cost with the exception of the expenditure of some time and energy, and yet it is an effort which can and will play a highly important role in the prosecution of the great adventure to which the people of Canada have committed themselves.

There is no farm in Western Canada which does not harbor its quota of obsolete machinery, abandoned implements, waste iron and scrap metal of all kinds which have accumulated during the pioneer days and have been added to during the later expansion period. In every town and village similar accumulations of discarded and waste material are to be found lying on vacant lots, behind barns and shops and outbuildings.

There are few attics and basements in villages and towns and on the farms which could not contribute materials, which would never otherwise be used, yet, if rescued, would form a valuable contribution to the task in hand, to which we have pledged our money and our energies, our time and our talents to the utmost limit.

Materials In Abundance

And what are these materials which are now being so eagerly sought as weapons in our fight against Hitler and his Nazi hordes? They are scrap iron and steel non-ferrous metals, rags and fibres, waste paper, bones, tin foil and culler, the last-mentioned being the trade name for bottles and glass, and other materials which Canadians waste to the tune of millions of dollars annually.

And what is going to be done with these materials, once they have been salvaged and transported into position where they can be converted into materials of direct and indirect use in the war effort? At the processing plants waste paper is going to be turned into shell wadding, aluminum pots and pans will be used in the manufacture of aeroplane parts, scrap iron will be converted into shrapnel, bones will become glycerine for high explosive, and glass, and other materials, will appear in other forms of war materials. For example, rags and fibres are needed for the manufacture of bags to replace jute from Calcutta which is now difficult to obtain because ocean bottoms are more urgently needed for other war requirements.

With the application of scientific methods to industry in more recent years, supplemented by the discovery of new and more scientific processes, it is surprising the number of valuable uses to which waste materials can be put today, and their value is further accentuated by rising costs of war materials and the increasing needs of these materials in the war economy.

Many, no doubt, would be surprised to hear that about ten pounds of tin foil, an amount which is easily procurable in almost any community, will sell for sufficient money to buy a cannister of two 3.7 anti-aircraft shells, enough, if properly placed, to bring down two Nazi bombers plying their nefarious business of shelling innocent women and children over an English town. Eight tons of scrap iron lying around the fields and machine sheds of many Canadian farms will sell for enough money to buy a 500-pound bomb to drop on Berlin or to put a Nazi submarine or cruiser out of commission.

A Job For All

Working through the National Salvage organization in Ottawa, many local committees have already been set up and are at work. In many other districts committees are now being set up or will be in the immediate future and no time should be lost until it will be possible to say that no community, however remote or obscure, is not at work combing its area for every pound of material that can be converted to the prosecution of the war or can be sold for materials needed to prosecute the war.

The modus operandi is perfectly simple. It is to secure waste material free, to secure salvage depots for collecting and sorting such material free and to gather and sort waste material by voluntary organization.

Here is an opportunity for practically everybody to make a much needed contribution to the war effort, and once accumulated, stores of material have been disposed of, to continue the effort for the rest of the war by saving and contributing such materials as they come to hand, as soon as sufficient quantities for economic handling can be made available.

Was Famous War Horse

Veteran Of First Great War Had To Be Destroyed

A famous veteran of the first great war, Lord Mottistone's horse "Warrior," has been destroyed because of failing health, it was disclosed at London. The 32-year-old "Warrior" had so many scars from death that the men of the Canadian cavalry Lord Mottistone's command in France called him "the horse the Germans can't kill."

Four months of incessant bombing did not prevent the annual performance of Handel's Messiah by the Royal Choral Society in London. This took place in Queen's Hall, fortunately so far undamaged, before a capacity audience.

The expression "fits a T" refers to the T-square or rule used by carpenters when exactitude is required.

Secret Was Discovered

Social Workers Found Why Certain Brand Of Flour Sold Well

According to Marketing, Toronto, a flour miller was unable to get his share of business in the coal regions of Pennsylvania. A sales consultant was asked to see what he could do. He went to the territory and spent a month talking to grocers, watching millers' wives buy, even calling on them in their homes. English is a strange tongue in that locality, so he hired a social worker who spoke several languages. Day after day she and the consultant went the rounds of miners' cabins, ostensibly making a diet check-up, explains Advertising & Selling. They learned that one brand of flour was getting most of the sales. Then one afternoon the social worker did a lot of talking in Polish. The mother of the family laughed and brought out several pieces of children's underwear made of the competitor's flour sacks. The company's sacks were of softer material, the thiefy women were buying flour in sacks which could be made into underwear.

A New Game

Goal Ball Is Intended To Be Played In Community Halls

Primarily intended for a game to be played in community halls or rooms with low ceilings and giving opportunity for basketball practice as well as entertainment, an arrangement of some of the usual basketball, hockey and other rules made its appearance in the Young Women's Christian Association gymnasium in Edmonton, Alberta, a few nights ago, where the Bissell girls basketball club played an exhibition game.

Any school or athletic club possessing a basketball and the securing of a few sticks and nails to construct goals might be interested enough to write to the Bissell girls club in Edmonton and ask for a copy of the printed rules of the game.

Copy Was Too Good

Japanese Are Great At Imitation But Often Lack Judgment

The Windsor Star gives us this story: So faithfully do the Japanese copy goods, they sometimes make an error in judgment. Take the case of a playing card company. The firm makes ordinary playing cards and also puts a card in each pack advertising a better grade of cards.

The Japs bought some of the ordinary cards to use as models. They copied the cards to the most minute detail and flooded the United States with the cheap decks. But when the playing card company had a laugh. Each pack of Japanese cards contained a card advertising the better product of the American company.

Buried Treasure

Manitoba Farmer Finds Valuable Hides For More Than 180 Years

A rich store of treasure is believed to have been unearthed by D. J. Prydzak—a farmer at High Bluff, Man. The treasure is believed to have been looted from white men by Indians and buried on an island in the Assiniboine river during a bloody battle between red-skin tribes more than 180 years ago.

Mr. Prydzak says he first discovered an old cedar log buried deep in the sand on the island. He split the log apart and found bits of colored glass and tiny particles of copper, brass, silver, gold and lead.

Mr. Prydzak says he made his second and most startling discovery on March 30 of this year. He relates he was walking through the bush on his estate when he noticed a stream of water running into a hole in the ground. He enlarged the hole and buried before his eyes was an amazing treasure.

It included exquisite rings, bracelets, earrings, buckles, chandeliers, goblets, vases, sword hilts, powder horns, knives, trays, kettles, braziers, even bars of gold and silver. Some of the gold bars were stamped with names of famous men who lived 200 years ago including Governor Lawrence of Acadia.

Canadian Red Cross

Reliance Upon This Organization By The British Navy League

Reliance upon the Canadian Red Cross by the British Navy League and various other organizations, as per following list, which serve the needs of the Merchant Navy in health as well as in sickness, is briefly shown in the donations our Society makes of cash, each and every month since January, 1940:

Navy League	$4,000
Mission to Seamen	1,000
British Sailors' Society	1,000
Merchant Navy Comforts	500
Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen	250
Seafarers' Fund	100
Shipwrecked Mariners Society	300
Liverpool Seamen's Society and Gordon Smith Institute	100
Too To Orkneys	300
Seamen's Hospital Society	175
Dreadnought	175

This has meant that of the funds given to the Red Cross by the people of Canada during 1940 and up to March 31st of 1941, the total, $145,375, has been devoted to men of the sea who need special attention in their heavy work in various climates and on all types of ships. The Canadian Society very willingly bears this burden for our own men of the sea, and the British civilians of donations which must come from pockets not well filled with cash to donate considering the enormous taxes on every pound earned.

The Red Cross Advisory Committee in London keeps constantly in touch with the needs of all sea services and maintains substantial reserves for them at all times.

Nazis Were Outwitted

Dutch Got Away With One Sub And Sink Another

A Dutch professor said his countrymen launched two submarines after the Germans invaded Holland and this happened:

One carrying a Dutch crew and a few German officers, kept right on going at its launching until it reached England.

The second carried a German crew to death.

The story of the submarine said Dr. Peter de Bruyn, 31, of Leiden, Holland, was typical of the way the Dutch were resisting the German occupation.

Dr. de Bruyn, who arrived at Jersey City, N.J. on the American Export liner Siboney from Lisbon with his wife and two children, said the first submarine was nearly completed at a Rotterdam shipyard when the Germans invaded the country.

The Germans told the shipyard to continue with the work, he said, adding that when the vessel was completed, the Germans put aboard a Dutch crew and a few Nazi officers.

"The sub kept right on going at the launching, to England," he said. "Our gravestone in Holland told up that the sub arrived safely."

When the second submarine was finished a few months later the Germans put an all-German crew aboard, he said, and declared:

"This submarine went down to the bottom."

The Germans were reported by him to be so incensed that they arrested 80 engineers and ship workers and executed 18.

Dr. de Bruyn is on his way to the University of Chicago to teach neurology.

A Vast Industry

Many Do Not Realize What Canada's Munitions Plants Accomplish

The Brockville Recorder and Times says people who do not live in the vicinity of Canadian munitions plants have little idea of the vastness and range of this industry or of the output which it has already attained. When Parliament is told by the Minister of Munitions and Supply that Canadian plants are now producing 350,000 shells a month, that the output of alloys is now at least ten times the pre-war figures and that deliveries of two orders of 404 training planes each have been made well ahead of the scheduled time, Canadians may, however, begin to appreciate some of the progress that has been made.

WAR ORDERS IN CANADA REACHING A HIGH FIGURE

Ottawa.—The munitions and supply department celebrated its first birthday, and its orders, placed for the Canadian and British governments, now have reached $1,500,000,000.

"Purchases are growing so rapidly they are soon expected to reach $5,000,000 a day," the department said in a "birthday review" of operations.

Some 1,400 men and women are responsible for department operations under Munitions Minister Howe.

A year ago 500 prisoners were employed in the department. Since then, the department statement said, "Canada entered into the making of the tools of war with vigor and grim determination. Peacetime business standards went by the board. Domestic demands were relegated to second place. War orders were given the right-of-way."

"Washing machine factories started to turn out fuses, farm implement plants turned to making shells, clothing factories concentrated on battle dress, an elevator company began making gun barrels."

The department gave these facts in its review of various phases of its operations during the year.

Construction workers tackled a $110,000,000 defence building program; for industry and the armed forces they put up nearly 2,700 buildings and constructed 106 air fields; today for plant extension and construction now is about $500,000,000.

The new plant program for manufacture of chemicals and explosives embraces some 19 projects and an expenditure of about $110,000,000. Five major and five smaller plants are either producing or about to do so.

The shipbuilding program, involving an expenditure of upwards of $120,000,000, is summarized as follows: corvettes 30, ordered, 47 launched; minesweepers, 60 ordered, 15 launched; auxiliary cruisers, three ordered and delivered; vessels converted to naval use, 27 ordered and delivered; also ordered were 24 patrol boats, 12 special minesweepers, and 20 cargo ships; deliveries are being made constantly under the $6,000,000 small boat program, which includes the construction of hundreds of craft ranging from punting boats to fast torpedo boats. A total of 190,000 motor vehicles have been ordered by Canada and other empire countries and more than 100,000 have been delivered.

In two recent consecutive weeks, Canadian airplane factories produced more than 40 planes per week. Since the beginning of the war some 1,300 aircraft have been built in Canada, and several hundred imported planes have been assembled.

In the past 12 months orders for clothing for the services totalled approximately $58,100,000; for foodstuffs, $14,500,000; for medical and dental supplies, $3,000,000.

Total armaments ordered run into hundreds of millions of dollars. Canadian plants now are producing Bren guns, two types of anti-aircraft carriers, and armor plate. Tens of millions of rounds of small arms ammunition are being produced monthly and nine types of gun ammunition are being manufactured at the rate of millions of rounds a year.

"Shortly," said the department, "Canada will produce her first tanks and 25-pounder field guns. Work is in progress leading to the later production of complete anti-aircraft guns and carriages; and three types of artillery guns and carriages. Extensive orders also have been placed for four types of naval guns. Depth charges, anti-tank mines, rifle grenades and mortars are on order."

Complaint From Japan

Newspaper Claims Axis Pact Offers No Protection Against Russia

London.—The Japanese newspaper Hochi complained that the tripartite pact does not offer Japan sufficient guarantees against Soviet Russia.

"We cannot blindly chant hymns to the three-power pact while the Soviet Union still threatens the rear of Japan," the newspaper said in an article quoted by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

"It is unreasonable," the newspaper continued, "that Japan should be constantly menaced by the Soviet Union so that her advance northward is being threatened, while Germany—another signatory to the pact—has concluded a non-aggression pact and an economic agreement with Russia."

The Canadian Navy

Is Giving Good Account of Itself On All Sides

Toronto.—Navy Minister Angus L. Macdonald, in an account of the far-reaching activities of the Royal Canadian Navy, disclosed that two more enemy merchant vessels had been sent to the bottom as a result of the watchfulness of a Canadian auxiliary cruiser.

In an address to the Canadian Club of Toronto in which he said "there is not a sea in the world where Canadian ships or sailors are not seen," he told of the action of the cruiser which he later confirmed as the Prince Henry.

He said the cruiser had caught up with the enemy ships and they, "in the good German way, scuttled themselves." Canadian sailors aboard the Prince Henry were unable to extinguish the fires set by the German mariners and the vessels were sunk.

He reviewed the growth of the Canadian navy from 1909 when, he said, Canadian naval policy had its origin, until the present time when the navy consists of 17,000 officers and men and 197 ships. He said present plans call for a navy of 27,000 officers and men by March 31, 1945, and it is hoped that 400 ships will be in service by then.

He praised sailors from Canada's western provinces who "had given a splendid account of themselves," when placed aboard ship.

Balkan Invasion

Lord Halifax Says Yugoslavia Forced Hitler's Hand

Washington.—British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax said Adolf Hitler's action in invading Yugoslavia and Greece "nothing but violent theft and murder."

Halifax believes that Yugoslavia's defiance of the Axis forced Hitler into war against his wishes. But the British ambassador says that the Yugoslav resistance to Axis demands put Britain and her Allies on what he calls "the threshold of great events."

Of Italy, Halifax says Benito Mussolini had expected a 10-day war. But now that Mussolini has had to accept help from Hitler, he believes that all the work of the great Italian liberation of a century ago is being undone.

Halifax says that the remedy is not to destroy the German people themselves, but for all peoples who love peace to become so closely united that the Germans will understand that war is out of the question for 600 years. The British envoy's thoughts were expressed in a speech before the National Women's Press Club.

Mexico Seizes Vessels

Government Expropriates Twelve German and Italian Ships

Mexico City.—President Camacho issued a decree expropriating 12 German and Italian merchant ships taken in custody by the Mexican navy at Tampico and Vera Cruz. The president ordered the ministry of the navy to place crews aboard the 10 Italian and two German ships immediately so that Mexico could use them in coastwise and international trade without delay.

Under the decree, settlement of claims against the expropriations would be deferred until the end of the war.

The president ordered Foreign Minister Pedilla to notify the German and Italian ministers immediately.

This action quickly followed Mexico's flat rejection of these ministers' requests for immediate surrender of the seized ships.

Mounties Get More Pay

House Of Commons Makes Announcement Of Well-Desired Increase

Ottawa.—Justice Minister Lapointe announced an increase in pay of personnel of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The increase, dating from April 1, 1941, range from 50 cents a day for constables and corporals, 70 cents a day for sergeants and staff sergeants, to $1.20 a day for assistant commissioners.

Constables now receive up to $2.25 a day.

The announcement was made in the House of Commons where, some weeks ago, there was a general expression by all parties that the R.C.M.P. receive increases and members applauded the news.

Danish Ships

Washington.—President Roosevelt asserted he would ask congress for legislation under which Danish ships in American ports would be purchased by the United States government.

Grateful To News Services

Secretary Of U.S. Navy Was Given Co-operation He Requested

Washington.—Col. Frank Knox, secretary of the United States Navy, issued for publication the following statement:

"I wish to commend the action of the press association, newspapers, broadcasting companies and photographic agencies who have co-operated at my request in not reporting the recent arrival of a British warship in this country."

"The lease-lend act makes the United States a repair base for British war vessels. It is true that many people can see these ships as they arrive and depart and before they are swallowed up in navy yards. It is also true that enemy agents can report these movements, but it seems to me only sportsmanlike that the keen American press refrained from giving a report of these ships for the benefit of Britain's enemies. At the present time this sort of reporting is of incalculable military value to the Germans."

SHIPPING LOSSES IN RECENT WEEKS HEAVIEST OF YEAR

London.—Failure of overdue ships to turn up sent British, Allied and neutral shipping losses for two of the past five weeks to approximately 150,000 tons each—heaviest toll of 1941 in the Battle of the Atlantic—authoritative sources declared. The average weekly loss of shipping during March was placed by the admiralty at 98,000 tons.

Intended losses for the week ending March 2 listed 30 ships totaling 150,700 tons—the biggest loss of any week this year. For the week ended March 16 amended losses were given as 27 ships of 148,098 tons.

Losses declined during the week ended March 23 to 17 ships aggregating 59,141 tons, the admiralty reported, and went up again the following week to 20 ships of 77,576 tons.

The breakdown of losses for the week ending March 30: British, 13 ships, 58,870 tons; Allied, five ships, 14,475 tons; and neutral, two ships, 3,796 tons. In the same week the Axis claimed 190,000 tons sunk, the admiralty said.

The loss figures for the week ended March 16 already had been amended once from 23 ships to 27 and from 71,773 tons to 94,402.

In announcing the latest losses, an authoritative source declared the Battle of the Atlantic "may well decide the result of the war." This source said the battle "must continue under a period of months with considerable sacrifice and endurance by merchant seamen and the Royal Navy" and added "we must not underestimate this immensely difficult problem."

It was announced that the average weekly shipping toll since the start of the war, excluding the losses at Dunkirk, was 66,748 tons, and the weekly average for February 88,000 tons.

An admiralty statement said Britain had conveyed 200,000,000 gross tons of shipping since the start of the war. The greater part of this tonnage, the statement said, "arrived unmolested by the enemy."

Help For The Balkans

War Supplies Are Being Rushed From United States

Washington.—The United States rushed shipments of war supplies to Yugoslavia and Greece after State Secretary Cordell Hull had denounced Germany's Balkan invasion as "barbaric" and promised that material assistance would be despatched to the defenders "as speedily as possible."

Indications were that these munitions would be started across the Atlantic, probably in Yugoslav vessels now in American ports. The administration is understood to have been preparing for several days against the hour when Germany would launch her Balkan attack.

Included in the shipments may be the 75-millimetre guns which President Roosevelt said would be sent to Greece, as well as machine guns, mortars, ammunition, bombs and other supplies drawn from the stores of the U.S. army.

One Route Closed

Limit Passenger Routes Between Britain And Elre

London.—The Great Western and the London, Midland and Scottish Railways disclosed they had closed one passenger route between Britain and Elre "for reasons of safety."

An alternate route is in effect, railway offices said after stating that the main route was closed. There also is a commercial air line connection between England and Ireland.

Navicerts will be required for all goods shipped to Elre from neutral countries outside the European zone effective May 1, the ministry of economic warfare announced.

Manned By Norwegians

London.—Norwegian forces are manning four of the United States destroyers turned over to Britain. This is revealed by Norway's foreign minister, Trygve Lie. He says that Norwegian authorities plan to name the destroyers after towns with names common to Norway and the United States.

CHILDREN'S HOUR IN "HELL'S CORNER"

Although it has been dubbed "Hell-Fire Corner," because of the almost constant drubbing by air bombs and long range artillery shells from across the channel, England's Dover is still home to these children. Many have been evacuated, but the great majority remain at home with their folks. These kiddies are now war-wise. They know just when to duck.

Help To Break Monotony

Canadian Troops Welcomed Nazi Air Forays Over Iceland

Ottawa.—Spasmodic German air forays over Iceland serve only to "break the monotony" for Canadian troops there, Lt.-Col. G. Harold Rogers related in a letter read to Ottawa Rotary club.

Col. Rogers, who commands an Ottawa unit in Iceland, said German planes had made a couple of visits and on one occasion the rear gunner of a Nazi machine was believed killed.

He said the troops welcomed these "visits" and were hoping for a "return engagement."

CALL IS ISSUED FOR MORE MEN FOR ARMED FORCES

Ottawa.—A call for upwards of 116,000 men will be made during the current year to reinforce Canada's armed forces, it was announced in a joint radio appeal for recruits by Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Navy Minister Macdonald.

Of the manpower required during 1941, the army will absorb up to 72,000, the air force approximately 35,000 and the navy plans about 9,000 officers and men, the minister said.

Launching the first public appeal for recruits since the outbreak of war, Col. Ralston said the absence of pressure in the past had probably created an impression that men were not needed.

Under present conditions, the army alone would require between 5,000 to 9,000 every month for active service to fill up units already formed or to add to them.

Col. Ralston said members of reserve units with draft battalions in the active army would be given an opportunity to volunteer for active service as the need arose for more men. It was impracticable for each active unit to have a reserve unit of the same name, but under an arrangement of "volunteers" from reserve units, would be permitted to join active formations from the same province, and in some cases, from the same locality as their reserve unit. This plan of "matching up" reserve units with an active unit from the same territory would promote a spirit of provincial and local pride.

Major Power said more than 60,000 men now serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force. In raising the quota of about 35,000 for the next 12 months there would be no shortage of candidates for reserve duties, while there was also a reserve of pilots, observers and gunners. Within a few months and every month thereafter there would be a growing demand for aircrew recruits. The immediate and most urgent need of the Royal Canadian Air Force was for radio technicians to operate a new scientific weapon against air attack.

"We are looking for 2,500 Canadians of good common sense who are ready, this minute to volunteer for overseas service in a new service. I do not like to overstate the case, yet I can say that it is of vital importance that we get these men and that we get them immediately."

The age limit for radio technicians would be from 18 to 35 years.

"The British air ministry expects great things from this invention," the minister said. "The details of this work are of course secret, but I can say that in general terms it means that by using a great number of small radio sets of modern design, radio technicians posted at ground points all over the British Isles will be able to detect enemy planes in the air and direct anti-aircraft fire with deadly precision."

Mr. Macdonald said there had been some disappointment among many eager to join the Royal Canadian Navy, but for whom no place was available.

"Our policy has been and will continue to be one of expansion, but at the same time one of careful selection," he said.

Since the outbreak of war the Royal Canadian Navy had been expanded ten-fold, necessitating additional training space and many new instructors.

One of the most pressing needs of the Royal Canadian Navy was for marine engineers, with at least third or fourth class marine certificates. The immediate requirement was for 350 men in this classification.

There was also an urgent demand for 350 high-class motor mechanics, and openings for shipwrights and cooks. Tradesmen in other categories would also be accepted and placed on a waiting list until such times as vacancies occurred.

CHURCHILL ASKS FOR MORE SHIPS TO DEFEAT NAZIS

London.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned that Adolf Hitler's mightiest war effort threatens to sink America's aid-to-Britain and may explode at any moment in an invasion of Britain, an attack on Turkey and a thrust at Russian wheat granaries and oil fields. What-ever the events in the Balkans, in Africa—where he said that even Egypt may be threatened by Nazi panzer divisions—or elsewhere, Churchill declared the main theatre of war was the battle of the Atlantic.

"Everything," said Churchill, "turns on the Battle of the Atlantic which is proceeding with growing intensity on both sides."

He said that German submarines and surface raiders are ranging ever farther westward toward American shores, seeking to sink America's aid to Britain. He declared that unless this menace is met and defeated "the life of Britain" will be threatened and "the purpose . . . to which the government and the people of the United States have devoted themselves will be frustrated."

Churchill said that only the full resources of America's shipbuilding industry would enable Britain to carry on full scale warfare into 1942 in the face of the German submarine and surface raider blitz. He said a disaster would ensue if the Germans succeeded in their attempt to send to the bottom America's much-needed war supplies.

The prime minister spoke in sombre and solemn tone. He was more grave than the House of Commons has seen him at any time since the collapse of France.

He said Germany presents these menaces to Britain and the world:

1. The Battle of the Atlantic where British sea power is challenged.
2. The Balkans where Nazi panzer division reached the Aegean at Salonika at 4 a.m. to-day and may at any moment attack Turkey and drive for the wheat fields of the Ukraine and the Caucasian oil fields.
3. Britain, itself, which at any moment may be invaded.
4. Africa, where only hard British fighting will prevent German drive for all Syria and invasion of Egypt with the threat of the Suez lifeline which that implies.

Italy's Losses Heavy

Estimated Casualties In Africa And Ethiopia Now Total 283,195

London.—Italy's loss of the greater part of her African empire has cost her 191,195 men, the ministry of information announced.

Italian casualties including prisoners in Eritrea and Ethiopia, up to April 5 totalled 20,160; in Libya up to March 4 the number was 140,000, including 24 generals and one admiral; in Italian Somaliland the total was 4,000, including one general.

British losses up to Feb. 23 were put at 2,966.

Italy lost 92,000 men in the Albanian fighting up to Feb. 3, which was a grand total of 283,195 in both war theatres, the ministry said.

Statement From De Gaulle

Possible That Free French Troops May Fight In Balkans

Alexandria, Egypt.—Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Free French leader, said it is possible Free French troops will take part in the fighting in the Balkans.

"I have reason to hope that the Free French will take part in the battle of the Balkans," the general said in an interview, "and it is possible that I may go there."

Gen. De Gaulle, on an inspection tour of Free French units in the Middle East, predicted a formidable German effort but said he is convinced "Balkan countries which have chosen to resist will not regret it."

Air Marshal Bishop

Ottawa.—The Royal Canadian Air Force announced that Air Marshal W. A. Bishop will leave soon for Los Angeles, where he will address a chamber of commerce meeting this week.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Great men of history who have left us the legacy of democratic government all seem to have been of one mind that the preservation of freedom depended to a large degree on the preservation of the freedom of the press. That is why in all truly democratic states a free press is more than just a tradition—it is an essential principle of democracy.

One of the prerequisites of an autocracy is the abrogation of the freedom of the press, because this freedom has essentially, through the centuries, shown itself to be the one great force which has seen to it that the freedom of the individual has been preserved. When freedom of the press is abolished, other freedoms go with it. There is little need at this time to stress that point. There are so many poignant and tragic examples in the world today of a subservient press, that it must be obvious to any intelligent person that the freedom of the press is synonymous with the freedom which is democracy.

There have always been those, who, often for reasons of personal aggrandizement or lust for power, would rob the press of this precious jewel in the crown of liberty. There have been others who cry out for personal freedom of expression, but who would deny this right to the press. It has been claimed that this freedom can become license, but this is one of those half-truths which unthinking people are likely to accept at its face value.

Actually the press enjoys a freedom which gives it no privilege above the individual. It must conform to the laws of the state. No freedom is bound by the laws of libel and slander. It certainly offers no greater opportunity for defaming any person or institution than does the inherent right of free speech with which every citizen is endowed as a birthright. Abraham Lincoln in a debate on the constitution once said: "The liberty of the press is the tyrant's scourge; it is the true friend and the ardent supporter of civil liberty." The principle of freedom of the press, as it exists today, is the result of a long and bitter struggle between those who believed in civil rights and constitutional authority, and those who feared the exercise of these rights.

It is significant that the first amendment to the Bill of Rights of the American Constitution, adopted in 1791, is one that relates to the freedom of the press. It reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or the prohibition of the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." The very wording of this amendment places freedom of the press on the same level, and of equal import with freedom of religion, of speech and of assembly.

A Rhode Island State provision sums up the question of a free press in a few words when it says: "The liberty of the press being essential to the security and freedom of the state, any person may publish his sentiments on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty, and in all trials for libel, both civil and criminal, the truth, unless published from malicious motives, shall be sufficient defense to the person charged."

Many other democratic countries have passed similar legislation, because from a wide study of the dangers of a subservient press, they have learned that a free press is the best assurance of a free country.

To be fully comprehended, the freedom of the press must be accepted by democratic peoples as a typical example of the privileges they enjoy as individuals in a democratic state. To abolish the freedom of the press, is to invite the abolition of all freedom for the individual.

RED CROSS SUPPORTS EAST COAST CENTRE

The Canadian Red Cross Society is contributing $20,000 to a new and enlarged $30,000 canteen and recreation building for sailors at an east coast centre. Norman Sommerville, central council chairman, announced. The Red Cross donation was made at the request of Colonel E. A. Deacon, director of auxiliary services, department of national defence, and has the endorsement of Rear Admiral Perry W. Nelles, chief of naval staff at Ottawa, who has stressed the "urgent need" of such a centre.

The building will be erected just outside the eastern port on property provided by the naval command. Mr. Sommerville said, pointing out that it would be the only recreation centre accommodating sailors who were unable to go into Halifax.

The centre will be operated by the North East Services Canteen Association, whose members are nearly all wives of naval officers. Since the outbreak of war the women have been running the canteen in an old church hall, for which the Red Cross contributed some renovations and equipment, Mr. Sommerville said.

The new project will have a spacious auditorium with a stage for concerts, which can also be converted into a hall for entertainments and dancing. Games, reading and writing facilities and a canteen will also be included.

To date the Red Cross has contributed $200,000 for supplies, hospital and recreational facilities for British and Canadian sailors in Halifax. This includes $50,000 toward a 750-bed hotel operated by the Y.M.C.A.; toward enlarging a 250-bed Salvation Army hotel and equipping a canteen run by the Knights of Columbus. Some $80,000 has also been given by the Society for extra supplies for sailors in Halifax. Men of the Canadian Navy and Merchant Marine have benefited since the outbreak of war 120,000 articles of socks, sweaters, underwear, windbreakers and other winter comforts given out at the port. NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Whitford)

Edmonton, April 14.—The matter of the government's attempted refunding plan for the provincial debt and of the alleged plan of certain civil servants for forming a syndicate to secure big profits for the deal has dropped out of the public mind for the time being, though it is by no means a closed incident.

There has been some wonder why the Independents made no attempt to put Hon. Solon Lew on record in the house concerning Mr. Maynard's tricky and successful bluff to stop further inquiry.

It is not recognized that after the resolution had been put to a vote in the legislature and defeated, as it was, it could not under parliamentary rules be brought up again during the session. And the resolution of Major Davidson had been disposed of before Mr. Lew got back in the house from his trip to Utah.

That is the explanation of how the matter came to be dropped in the legislature.

There are some very pertinent questions going the round in connection with the affair, however, and some of them may require answering before long. For instance, why were Alberta bonds so very active at the time the efforts at refunding were being made? And why were members of the government so very mad then, at reports of refunding plans getting published? Was it because they feared some of the profits would disappear if prices went up?

Who was buying up Alberta bonds at that time and thus causing the slight flurry in the securities? For whom was the buying being done?

It should be remembered that Alberta bonds at the time the rumors of the refunding deal were started were worth about $35 on the average. The province, under a fancy deal which was proposed, was to redeem them at par—$100. So there was to be a very nice profit of 45 per cent on at least $125,000,000—which meant a profit of more than $56,000,000.

Why didn't the deal go through, if there was such a deal?

Here are some possible answers:

1. Did the big bad financiers learn of some untoward facts behind the proposal, and turn out to be so honest that they wouldn't touch it?

2. Did these financiers decide that even with such titanic profits in sight, they couldn't afford to take a chance in a deal with a government which has the financial reputation which Alberta has been given since 1907?

3. Did the honest citizens members of Alberta discover the facts behind the impending deal and put a stop to it? In that case why have the people connected with it been allowed to escape without being exposed?

4. Or was there, in fact, no such deal ever proposed? Is it untrue that Premier Abernethy wrote, in his own hand, certain financial understandings with Sousa? And is it untrue that any member of the government, or employees of the government, made any dishonest arrangements? If it's all untrue, why does the government not come out and say so? Why didn't the men whose names have been mentioned in connection with this alleged deal—or the others whose names have named—come out flatly and deny any connection with it?

Premier Abernethy's protest to the effect that there hasn't been any $50-million-dollar graft at the expense of the Alberta people because the deal didn't go through, isn't a good enough answer from a government which prohibits its members from accepting such gifts?

Surely the 200,000 families in this province are entitled to know the facts behind it all, if there was a deal about which threatened to cost each of these families $200 as Alberta citizens.

FUN TO LEARN THE PIANO
THIS EASY SHORT-CUT WAY

Please With Favorite Airs

What a change in a girl's social life when she teaches herself to play the piano! Instead of being just "one of those present" she's the star of the party—delighting old friends and winning new ones.

And you can teach yourself to play by a short-cut method which makes it easy to read music and master the piano keyboard.

You have a "life-size" chart of the part of the piano most frequently used. With each picture key is the note which is its symbol on the music staff. When you place this chart behind your keyboard, you see at a glance which key to strike for each note.

You see too that, huge though the keyboard may look, the same 12 black and white keys are repeated throughout its length. Our diagram shows you these 12 keys, starting at Middle C and continuing to the next C in what is called an octave. Learn this simple octave, both keys and notes, and you've taken the first big step in playing the piano.

Other steps are as simple; in no time you are playing your favorite airs. Our new 24-page instruction book includes the keyboard chart; explains chords and elements of music; gives the music of popular tunes for practice.

Rich in Friends

Jack Miner, Canadian Naturalist, Celebrates His 76th Birthday

Jack Miner, Canadian Naturalist, celebrated his 76th birthday. He has received many congratulatory messages for April 10 was his seventy-sixth birthday. Surrounded by several newspaper reporters and photographers, he said: "The biggest bank account I ever had was an overdrawn one. The bankers have carried me all my life so no doubt they would like to be my pallbearers and be glad to carry me the rest of the way."

He said four things constituted his life: Children, flowers, birds and music the greatest being children. "Were it not for these four things about me, I would have no desire to carry on," he stated.

"When I die I will die a poor man financially, but rich in friends. Some men can count their money, but I cannot count my friends."

"Were it not for my friends I could not have carried on and my bird sanctuary would not have been such a success. I am now referring to my wealthy friends who have helped me financially, the newspaper editors who have so wholeheartedly backed me up and caused others to create bird sanctuaries, and the radio that equally has given me its support in making the needs of this place known."

"My best friends are those who know my faults and still love me." Speaking of the bird sanctuary system of protecting birds, he said: "A bird sanctuary takes nothing from any one. On the contrary, it increases the chances of the 90 per cent. who do not shoot, of seeing a bird alive. It increases the hunter's chances of getting a full game bag, not only for this generation, but for generations to come."

Among the honors to come to Jack Miner in 1941 was that the press of the land proclaimed him "the best known citizen in Canada and the fifth best known in the U.S.A."

Mr. D. Leo Dolan, chairman of the Dominion Publicity Bureau, was proclaimed him a "National Benefactor."

Although he has celebrated his 76th birthday, yet he was recently made president of the Essex County Tourist Association. In this capacity he is giving his time and influence in trying to bring citizens of the United States into Canada with their United States money at a time when this Dominion so badly needs it.

Against The Law

Calling Anyone A "Quisling" Is Not Allowed In Britain

It is slanderous to call any one in Britain a "Quisling." William Hewitt, an army officer, was awarded £100 ($445) damages against Thomas Thorne, who had so called him.

The court ruled that to say a man was a "Quisling" was to accuse him of being disloyal.

Vidkun Quisling, Norwegian Nazi leader, was the leading traitor to his country at the time of the German invasion a year ago.

Despite an elaborate system of safety devices, 346 railway grade crossing accidents occurred in Canada in 1940, taking 133 lives and injuring 480 persons. More than half the total daylight under good visibility conditions and almost a third of them took place when autos or trucks actually crashed into the sides of moving trains, as shown in the photo and diagram above. This illustration is the second in the series designed to show the motoring public the grim results which may follow disregard of the elementary precaution of stopping briefly to scan the railway track for approaching trains when a crossing is to be negotiated.

Gardening

A few special implements will make gardening more interesting and less arduous. These are not expensive. For ordinary digging both a spade and a digging fork have a place. The first is ideal for turning over soil in the spring, or for breaking up soil. The fork, lighter and quicker to operate, is ideal for cultivating anytime through the season and especially for breaking up soil that has been plowed or spaded sometime earlier. For killing weeds, thinning, cultivating large vegetables and shrubbery, a small, not-too-wide, hoe well sharpened is the ideal tool.

The Dutch Hoe

For working under shrubbery and around small bedding plants, such as newly set out petunias, asters, cabbage, etc., a Dutch hoe is ideal. This is a U-shaped affair and is pushed along just under the surface of the soil. It cuts off any weeds and leaves the soil broken and crumbly. For routine cultivation some use of a three to five-pronged cultivator is recommended. The larger of these are dragged along rows and between plants. They have long handles, and cost about a dollar. For working in small spaces, a smaller cultivator can be used.

To Prevent Jangles

One can do wonders with flowers alone, but still more amazing results will follow where we combine flowers skilfully with grass, winding walks, shrubbery and bits of stone-work. In this combining, however, we must take care not to reproduce a jungle. A little preliminary planning and a rough sketch drawn approximately to scale will help wonderfully. Flowers and shrubbery must not be so crowded that they become spindly and weak. Little flowers must not be hidden by tall things like full size marigolds, cosmos or zinnias. Beds must be so arranged that we can keep down weeds and remove fading foliage. Above all, we must remember that unless we are very skilful, it is best to use a fair amount of lawn as a foreground for our flower beds. Lawns are almost vital in creating garden pictures.

Frost The Lawn

This lawn badly mixed with weeds almost invariably have poor soil. Sometimes only a liberal application of commercial fertilizer will help. A good manure is necessary to restore rich greenness. Well fed, well watered grass will usually crowd out most weeds, though it will appreciate some help from the gardener who does not mind spending a few hours with a sharp weeder.

Determined To Be Free

Yugoslavia Would Rather Die Than Give In To Nazis

The love of freedom has compelled a nation of 16,000,000 to defy a nation of 90,000,000. The determination to be free has caused a people or rather three peoples to overthrow their own Government because it did not match that determination. A passion for independence which the Nazis thought to exploit to keep the Yugoslavs divided into Serb, Croat and Slovene, has united in Yugoslavia a kind of unity not before in evidence since the early days of Yugoslav statehood—Christian Science Monitor.

Good Conduct Expected

"Especially good conduct" is expected of guests in Germany, said a court in sentencing two Frenchmen to death for robbery of a German citizen. The Frenchmen went to Berlin from Paris as factory workers. They were said to have robbed a German during the blackout.

TOYS: DRESS-UP OR PLAY MODE

By Anne Adams

Fashion has no age limits—no when an entrancing style like Pattern 4720 is especially designed for little size 'two-to-ten' girls. This Anne Adams pattern-book is a novel as can be, yet it's so simple to cut and sew! First, notice the gathering through the front skirt, just below that unexpected point of the waist—so smart! Then, see the nicely curved side bodice sections. The sleeves may be wing-like flares in crisp puffs. For a dress-up style of sheer flowered fabric, sew on a pert bow and lace edging. To make a more everyday version of cotton or rayon, use buttons and a matching or contrasting collar. If your fabric is striped, you might let the centre bodice section be on the cross-grain, for striking effect.

Pattern 4720 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 takes 2 yards 3/4 inch fabric and 1/4 yard contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly: Miss, Name, Address, Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

People living near St. Barnabas Church in Eritman, England, were surprised to hear the church bell ringing on an afternoon in 1940, despite Britain's order against the tolling of the bells. The bell was muffled, but could be heard. It was rung during the institution and induction by the Bishop of Southwark of a new vicar.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 20

USING WITNESSING POWER

Golden text: They were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and they spoke the word of God with boldness. Acts 4:31.

Lesson: Acts 2:14, 3. Devotional reading: Matthew 10: 16-22.

Explanations and Comments

The Coming of the Promised Power, Acts 2:1-12. On the day of Pentecost something extraordinary happened. Something came which could only be described by figures of speech borrowed from the natural elements. There was a sound as of wind and an appearance as of fire, symbols of the Holy Spirit promised to Christ's disciples. The disciples found themselves praising God in words that sounded strange in their ears, and which Jews from everywhere understood and at which they marvelled. The symbols that were like wind and like fire disappeared after a time; the accompanying gift of "speaking with tongues" was also transient; but the Spirit's presence was abiding, and by it they were empowered to carry out Christ's great command of proclaiming the gospel to all peoples.

Peter and John Arrested, Acts 3: 17-4:6. The great gathering in Solomon's Porch of the Temple drew the attention of the captain of the temple and of the Sadducees. The Sadducees were offended at Peter's preaching, for they did not believe in immortality, and in proclaiming the resurrection of Jesus. Peter was preaching this doctrine. They arrested the two apostles, and because it was evening, time for the guards to close the temple gates and too late for a trial, they put the two in prison for the night. The first of the long line of persecutions was begun.

Peter's Boldness Before the Sanhedrin, Acts 4:13-18. On the following day, Peter and John were brought before the Sanhedrin, that great Jewish tribunal. Annas and Caiaphas, Alexander and other great officials were present. The man whom Peter had healed was also there, as a kind of accessory to the "good deed." "By what power and in what name do you do these things?" they demanded. Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, and eager to use the opportunity of giving his witness, answered boldly: "Ye rulers of the people (the chief priests) and elders (representatives of the Sanhedrin), if we tell you of a vision, it is a frequent cause of testimony. On the basis of present knowledge, it was explained, Tuberculosis also would be wiped out in a generation. All too often, it was said, this disease is carried direct from a tuberculosis to human beings by means of raw milk. Pasteurization of raw milk consumed by humans will stamp out this important cause of crippling. Ontario already has a compulsory pasteurization law. The incidence in Tuberculosis in Ontario is showing a marked decline year by year.

Rickets, once the important cause of crippling, is also rapidly disappearing. Mr. Hopper asserted. The new legs and hunchbacks so often encountered a generation ago are rare because parents are learning the elementary rules of child hygiene. The most important single factor appears to be the regular use of cod-liver oil during the first few years of life. This simple measure has the remarkable effect of enabling children to produce strong and healthy bone structure.

Advise Worth Following

A committee on cereal varieties has made recommendations for the prairie provinces. Their work has been to fit ten varieties of hard red spring wheat into the districts best adapted to them. This official advice is well worth following unless there is some local condition that makes a different choice advisable.

WHEN DEATH WON THE RACE

Despite an elaborate system of safety devices, 346 railway grade crossing accidents occurred in Canada in 1940, taking 133 lives and injuring 480 persons. More than half the total daylight under good visibility conditions and almost a third of them took place when autos or trucks actually crashed into the sides of moving trains, as shown in the photo and diagram above. This illustration is the second in the series designed to show the motoring public the grim results which may follow disregard of the elementary precaution of stopping briefly to scan the railway track for approaching trains when a crossing is to be negotiated.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN

There are at least 24,000 crippled children in Canada, Reg. W. Hopper, Executive Secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children said recently, and a very high percentage of crippling is preventable.

While it is true that some children are born with deformities, most crippling is a result of such diseases as Infantile Paralysis, Tuberculosis and Rickets. He urged that a greater effort should be made to prevent the 80% of unnecessary crippling.

Probably parents dread Infantile Paralysis more than any other disease. This is largely a hangover from the past when nobody knew that the deformities which often follow this disease could be prevented. Modern medical practice has established the fact that contracture deformities resulting from paralyzed muscles need never exist. A great deal has been learned as a result of the Infantile Paralysis epidemic of 1937. Some 8,000 cases occurred in Ontario in that year. Through the action of the Provincial Department of Health standardized treatment was made available to all. A close follow-up of the results show that cases brought under proper care where the parents give their intelligent co-operation, produced no deformities.

Tuberculosis of bones and joints is a frequent cause of deformity. On the basis of present knowledge, it was explained, Tuberculosis also would be wiped out in a generation. All too often, it was said, this disease is carried direct from a tuberculosis to human beings by means of raw milk. Pasteurization of raw milk consumed by humans will stamp out this important cause of crippling. Ontario already has a compulsory pasteurization law. A Scarcity Of Pins

Currently Unobtainable In London And Price Has Gone Up

Anything which sheds a momentary gleam of humor as relief from the tragedy of war is welcome. Such is the recent dispatch from London telling of the frantic searching for pins by Saville Row tailors. They are said to be delving between the cracks of their floor boards, where pins may have fallen in better days, for the little implements to hold suits together while they are being fitted on British forms. Pins are currently unobtainable in London.

Troubles of the London tailors appear to result from exhaustion of their quota. The December issue of rationed pins was but a fraction of the previous month. This has sent the price of pins soaring from nine cents to 30 cents a box. The tailors of London may have to fall back on the prehistoric pin, which was a thorn from the nearest bush that held together the skin suits of the cave men.

DAUGHTER OF DESTINY

—BY—
Eleanor Atturbury Colton

CHAPTER II—Continued

Wong led the way around a curved hallway, past handsomely furnished bedrooms. His padded slippers made no sound on the polished floor. Only the click of her own heels as they made a little procession of two through the deserted hallway. Finally, Wong entered one of the rooms, set down her luggage.

"Will there be anything else, Miss?" His slanting, Oriental eyes studied her coolly, his yellow face impassive, inscrutable.

Still, Devona sensed the strange antagonism. As if he'd resented her coming.

"No, that's all, thank you," she said, abruptly.

"Very good, Miss." He bobbed that stiff little bow at her again before he closed the door behind him.

Amused, Devona tried to shrug off the ridiculous feeling of cold horror. It was something like the sensation she'd known once when a deadly cobra raised its hooded head out of her bathtub.

But that—she mustered a little chuckle—was far away India. This was California and Wong was undoubtedly only a harmless, well-trained servant. Her strange life gyping into far places had made her super-sensitive. She must remember she was no longer in a country where danger, often swift, silent, horrible death, lurked around every corner.

There could certainly be no danger lurking in this beautiful place. She glanced around the lovely room. Her room. Her very own. Cool blue drapes against soft sandy walls, rich carved oaken chest that might have come directly from an old Mission chapel. The whole like a lovely picture.

And beyond, a startlingly blue bathroom with square fish and spiny sea-monsters yawning from the mosaic of tile on the walls.

From a long window opening onto a griled front balcony, she looked down into a garden. A fountain splashed coolly somewhere in the shadows. For a moment she had expected some handsome, gallant troubadour—some Jose Macias, guitar in hand—to serenade her from the flagstone patio.

Like a story book or a movie set or—a dream. Perfect. And all this—she turned back into the room again—her mother's home. And now, her own home, too. A place where she could forget about trunks and storage boxes and passport. A place where she'd never hear any language but her own. Never see famine or war or pestilence stalking through the streets.

"I'm so lucky," she whispered aloud. "So very lucky."

Some one tapped softly at her door.

Vara came. Devona returned? Her heart racing, Devona called, "Come in."

The door opened carefully. A maid, trim and pert in a gray uniform, smiled her way in. Devona's heart went back to normal.

"Buenos noches, Senorita." The girl stopped short, her big dark eyes wide with surprise. "—I thought you were here."

Have I a mistake? You are the Senorita—Rachoune. "—Yes. Why did you think you'd made a mistake?"

The pretty, dark-skinned maid still hesitated. "I thought, they said you'd be just the small girl." Then, recovering her manners, "May I help you to dress, Senorita? Dinner will be served in one hour."

"Why—yes. Thank you."

Even a maid to help her dress! Devona pinched herself to be sure she wasn't dreaming.

An hour later, when Margarita had smoothed the last touch of powder over Devona's gleaming shoulders, tucked a tiny rhinestone comb into a recalcitrant curl, she stepped back, smiling.

"You, too, are beautiful, Senorita," she said shyly.

"Thank you, Margarita."

Excitement threatening through her veins like heady wine, Devona thrilled to the new version of herself the mirror gave her. Would any one ever guess this was the first time in her life she'd worn a real evening gown? Dad had always shunned society everywhere.

SHE NEARLY RUINED THE STORE

I'VE TOLD YOU TWICE WE HAVEN'T THAT COLOUR... ARE YOU DEAF?

WHY...WHY...YOU...IMPERTINENT!

I OVERHEARD THAT, MISS JACKSON... WHAT HAS COME OVER YOU THESE DAYS? YOU'RE TOO IRRITABLE FOR A SALESGIRL.

I'M SORRY... BUT MY NERVES SEEM SO BAD... I ONLY WANTED COFFEE FOR BREAKFAST...

I THINK THAT'S YOU'RE TROUBLE TOO MUCH COFFEE AND TEA... YOU'VE GOT CAFFEINE-NERVES... BETTER SWITCH TO POSTUM WHILE WE STILL HAVE SOME CUSTOMERS LEFT.

THANKS FOR THE BONUS, MR. EARL... BUT REALLY I SHOULD THANK POSTUM FOR MY INCREASED SALES... I FEEL SO MUCH BETTER NOW.

A MONEY-SAVING HOT BEVERAGE

Delicious Instant Postum is particularly economical because the price per cup is low and there is no waste. Entirely free from any caffeine effect on nerves, stomach or heart. Try it for 30 days and see how much better you feel!

WHEN THEY DRINK POSTUM, I'M THROUGH

"Time enough when you're grown up," he'd always say, and pinch her ear affectionately.

Grown up. Devona proudest slowly. Her hair piled into a cluster of satiny curls on top of her head, her clear white skin catching the rich glow from the wine-red velvet dinner gown, she was grown up now, certainly. The dress itself was as simple and as subtle as the skin of a famous French couturier could make it. And as coquely as the Shanghai merchant had dared.

But she decided now—it had been here and there. Soft shirrings that shyly cupped her breast, long allouette lines that followed the lithe lines of her slim figure. No one could call her "little school girl" now!

"Was there anything else, Senorita?" The girl hesitated at the door.

"No, thank you."

"May I say, Senorita," the little maid added with a shy little smile, "I hope you will be very happy here."

"I'm sure I will, Margarita," and when she'd slipped silently away, Devona buried her face in her hands and murmured a little prayer of thanks to the kindly destiny that was making everything so unbelievably perfect.

The sound of voices in the hallway, some woman's lovely, low-voiced laughter, jerked Devona erect again. That must be her mother. Instinctively—instantly—she was sure of it. No one but a beautiful woman would laugh like that. And suddenly Devona was shivering.

The footsteps came to her door. Some one knocked.

Breathless, Devona managed "Come."

The same one opened the door—a gorgeously beautiful some one who stood, poised as if—Devona thought irreverently—waiting for applause to die down before she made her entrance.

"Vara Vadne!" she murmured, unconsciously speaking the name that came first to her lips.

It wasn't until long afterward that she realized how very significant those first two words had been.

Then, almost as an afterthought—"Mother!" She took a step toward her.

Vara smiled, slowly. "So this is Devona."

She's beautiful, Devona thought. More beautiful than Dad said. No wonder he adored her. "Yes—mother."

Devona nodded. "Yes. Why did you think you'd made a mistake?"

The pretty, dark-skinned maid still hesitated. "I thought, they said you'd be just the small girl." Then, recovering her manners, "May I help you to dress, Senorita? Dinner will be served in one hour."

"Why—yes. Thank you."

Even a maid to help her dress! Devona pinched herself to be sure she wasn't dreaming.

An hour later, when Margarita had smoothed the last touch of powder over Devona's gleaming shoulders, tucked a tiny rhinestone comb into a recalcitrant curl, she stepped back, smiling.

Excitement threatening through her veins like heady wine, Devona thrilled to the new version of herself the mirror gave her. Would any one ever guess this was the first time in her life she'd worn a real evening gown? Dad had always shunned society everywhere.

mother would think she wasn't really glad to be here.

"Did you? How nice." Vara opened a huge handbag, took a cigarette from—a gold, monogrammed case. "When did you arrive?"

"About an hour ago. Your maid was no kind about helping me unpack, dress. I'm so thrilled to be here and—," she began impulsively. Then, through a cloud of smoke, she saw the cool smile in her mother's eyes—and so grateful for everything she finished lamely.

"Are you? You look very—," Vara selected the word, "—French. And you'll no doubt amaze my guests. We aren't so elaborately formal here, you know."

"I'm sorry, Mother," Devona's hand flew to the fastening of the pretty red velvet. "I shall I change—something else—"

"Oh, never mind. As long as you're all dressed up, wear it." Vara smiled carelessly. "Later, when we've had time to make plans for you, we'll make more appropriate selections."

Cheeks scorching, Devona blinked back tears. "Yes, Mother."

Vara smeared out her cigarette. "By the way, please don't call me 'mother.' Most of my friends don't know about you. And none of my friends. Besides—her lovely lips twisted into a little grimace, "hearing you say that makes me feel so antique. Call me Vara, instead."

"Yes—Vara."

Vara smiled then—a lovely smile but somehow it never reached her eyes. "Run along downstairs now and show off your smart gown. I'll join you soon."

A Valuable Weed

Common Horsetail Best Agency For Finding Gold In Ground

A weed which grows profusely in Canada and the United States—the common horsetail—"is the best agency yet discovered for finding gold in the ground."

At a recent meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Dr. Hans Lundberg, Toronto geophysicist, told the story of the horsetail as a gold miner.

Dr. Lundberg said that many plants growing over ore bodies ex- tract metal from the ground. "The horsetail, however, is the most efficient miner of the lot."

The chief value of the discovery, said Dr. Lundberg, lies in the use of the horsetail to locate gold deposits. However, it is conceivable that in an area where the gold deposit is thin—too thin to mine—the horsetail could be planted and would extract the precious metal.

Horsetail can accumulate a gold content that assays four and a half ounces to the ton of horsetail. Dr. Lundberg said—Toronto Star Weekly.

A Much Used Word

The word "hello" is spoken 175 times a day by the average student, according to an Alfred University survey. The survey reveals some girls give the salutation as many as 350 times on warm spring or summer days. The average, however, is brought down by some of the timid youth who recognize a passerby only when necessary.

The Japanese think the fate of China is still in doubt. The Chinese don't.

"I was disappointed, too," Devona said simply. "But Dale—Mr. Breather I mean—was very kind. We had such a pleasant ride out and—"

Devona bit her lip. She shouldn't have been talking to her own mother like this, as if she were a Sister Superior or a dean of girls. Her stiff and formal and strange. Her

Interesting To Tourists

Legend of Nova Scotia's Malden Cave Is Very Old

Undimmed by the ages, the famous legend of "Malden Cave" is interesting to tourists who flock to Nova Scotia to enjoy her far-flung beauty, romance and tradition.

"Malden's Cave" is at Black Point, near Parrishboro. It is related that two centuries ago Deno, an Italian pirate, captured a British vessel with rich cargo and made all but the captain's daughter, who was extremely beautiful, walk the plank.

A great storm then drove the pirate from his course and he arrived in the Bay of Fundy, landing at Black Point.

The beach seemed littered with jewels and each of the pirates gathered a treasure of amethyst. The pirate captain, unable to subdue his fair captive, abandoned her. She was placed in a cave on the shore, a quantity of fish known as pollock thrown inside her, and the cave sealed with stone.

Later, strange wailing cries from the cave frightened away Indians passing by but later some of the bolder ones investigated, opened the cave and found the skeleton of the girl beside a heap of fish bones. The French knew the spot as "Pollock Cave" and it was claimed by them that at certain periods of the year the weird cries of the unfortunate girl could still be heard.

The legend of "Malden's Cave" survives to this day.

Fifteen-Year-Old Boy Youngest Holder of George Medal

John Chain, 15, who weighed two and one half pounds at birth and spent the first six months of his life in a bath of olive oil, is the youngest holder of the George Medal for gallantry.

When a bomb set a big factory afire near his home in London, Chain knew that many persons were sheltering in the cellar and he led four policemen through the blaze past barrels of inflammable paint and falling live wires to the rescue.

Part of the basement ceiling already had collapsed and paint was several inches deep on the floor. The rescuers became saturated with paint, and smoke and heat drove them back several times before they managed to carry all survivors from the shelter, using planks and broken doors for stretchers.

The policemen also got George Medals.

Doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.—Sir Philip Sidney.

We should give as we would receive, cheerfully, quickly, and without hesitation: for there is no grace in a benefit that sticks to the fingers.—Seneca.

The Fireless Locomotive

Is Clean And Easily Operated But Has Its Limitations

The fireless steam locomotive is a very simple machine. It carries a tank of hot water which supplies steam to a conventional engine. No fire box, no fuel, no boiler tubes are required. The tank is charged with steam from a power-plant boiler and provides several hours of normal service before recharging is necessary.

The engine, easily operated by one man, is clean and quiet. For certain applications it possesses definite advantages of economy and safety over the steam locomotive with a fired boiler.

For example, the fireless locomotive has lower first cost; requires less in repairs and upkeep; makes possible greater economy of fuel, which is burned in a stationary power plant, and has no fire hazard even in flammable atmosphere. While standing, it wastes much less energy than does a fired engine. Limitations in the use of it are the necessity for access to a steam boiler and the fact that only rather short hauls may be undertaken between trips to the boiler.

Typical applications are freight switching at industrial plants and coal haulage in mines.—Technology Review.
